Exhibit

The Ceramic Surface

January 16 through February 5 • Drury Gallery

The ceramic surface is often the most challenging and complete integration of an artist's concept. This exhibit will highlight the individual approach to narrative, form and function of ceramic artists Justin Rothshank, Magda Gluszek, Andy Jackson, Kurt Anderson, Julie Guyot and Meredith Host. Emblematic of their process, though divergent in result, conscientious surface treatment is the common thread that carries through their work. The gallery is open 1:00-5:00pm, Sunday through Friday.

Workshop

Introduction to Nonprofit Leadership

Monday, January 16, 8:45am • Marlboro College Graduate School

Have you volunteered your time for a local community organization but want to take it to the next step? Looking ahead to a career in environmental advocacy? Want to share your passion and expertise on healthcare, education or the arts as a board member? The Introduction to Nonprofit Leadership Workshop will give you the basic tools you need to be a positive force in any mission-driven organization. Cost: $25, or a 300- to 500-word essay on the following topic: If you had $10,000 and a year, what would you do to make a difference? Learn more at <http://www.marlboro.edu/news/events/2012/01/16/mlk/>.

Concert

Music for a Sunday Afternoon—Renana Gutman, piano

Sunday, January 22, 3:00pm • Ragle Hall

Pianist Renana Gutman will perform works by Mozart, Schubert, Chopin and Bach in the first of this season's Music for a Sunday Afternoon concert series. A Marlboro Music Festival participant, Gutman has performed across three continents, including the Jerusalem and Haifa symphonies, Belgium's I Flamminghi and Doctors Orchestral Society in New York. She is a graduate of Mannes College of Music, where she studied with Richard Goode and received both a bachelor's and a master's degree.

Reading

And You Thought You Knew Us: Readings by People Who Work Here

Tuesday, January 24, 7:00pm • Whittemore Theater

Come hear the poetry, fiction and nonfiction that showcase the more introspective side of Marlboro College employees. Ellen McCulloch-Lovell, Meg Mott, Dan Preniszni, Kyhl Lyndgaard, Sunny Tappan and others will share their literary explorations.

Planned Giving

Saturday, January 28 & Sunday, January 29 • Marlboro College Graduate School

People and organizations all need to plan for the future. This practical workshop will range from technical understanding of planned giving vehicles to the emotional, philanthropic and visionary choices people make as they think about estate planning. Taught by fundraising consultant Christine Graham and planned giving specialist Tom Smith, the course will look at how to plan for and benefit from bequests, annuities, charitable trusts, retirement funding gifts and gifts of life insurance. For more information, contact nonprofit@marlboro.edu. Register for the workshop at <http://mcgsplannedgiving.eventbrite.com/>. Cost: $200.
